Description of the Event:

The INNOVATRIX event started with a lot of excitement as teams of four teamed up for a smart challenge. It was about combining creative thinking with technical skills, offering an exciting teamwork experience to solve puzzles and craft narratives together. The event began with participants diving into the Don't Crack Up round, where they tackled intricate puzzles, followed by the Plot Bot round, which tested their storytelling and coding abilities.

Round One: Don't crack up

In the first round, teams of four tackle a combination of Guess the Price and Heads Up challenges. In Guess the Price, participants use their estimation and analytical skills to accurately guess the prices of various items. In Heads Up, teams work together as team members give clues while their team member guesses the word displayed on the screen, testing their quick thinking and teamwork. This engaging round not only assesses their individual skills but also their ability to collaborate effectively under pressure, setting the stage for the competition's next exciting phase.

Round Two: Plot Bot

In the second round, teams of four showcase their storytelling and coding skills. Participants are given prompts and codes with which they must create a compelling narrative. These round challenges their creativity, technical prowess, and ability to weave together a coherent story using the given elements. Teams must collaborate closely, combining their diverse skills to craft an engaging and innovative narrative, culminating in an impressive demonstration of their collective talent and ingenuity.

The INNOVATRIX event concluded with a burst of enthusiasm and innovation as teams showcased their problem-solving and creative skills. After two intense rounds—Don't Crack Up, featuring Guess the Price and Heads Up, and Plot Bot, which blended storytelling with coding—participants demonstrated exceptional teamwork and ingenuity. The event not only highlighted the participants' technical and creative abilities but also fostered a spirit of collaboration and innovation. All teams left with a sense of accomplishment, enriched by the challenging and rewarding experience of INNOVATRIX. E-certificates were awarded to all participants, commemorating their dedication and efforts in this thrilling tech adventure.
